

Community Health Worker Training Opportunity

USET is offering a Free Community Health Worker training opportunity designed to work with expectant families and families with young children.

The attached document includes detailed information regarding registration, location, and date.

A limited number of participants' registration fees ($500) will be covered and USET will also provide stipends to help cover travel costs.

This class uses Florida State University's "Partners for a Healthy Baby" home visitor curriculum and will be delivered by the University.

Register to attend this fun and informative workshop by clicking the link below by June 24, 2016.
