² Includes funds from the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) and Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS). The decrease is due to the FAS funds which are awarded on a competitive basis and these FY 2022 projections have not yet been determined.
³ Provided through a combination of mandatory and discretionary funding. Decrease due to carryover from FY 2021 due to pandemic-related participation decline. Participation is projected to rebound in FY 2022.
⁴ Provided through mandatory funding. Decrease due to anticipated expiration of supplemental Emergency Allotments once the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency ends.

¹ Change from FY 2021 Enacted to FY 2022 Budget is due to Congress adding an annual general provision that makes $25 million available for incentive payments authorized by section 504 of the Indian Financing Act of 1974 (25 U.S.C. 1544).

¹ The FY 2022 Budget reflects the increase for the Tribal Air Quality Management program project, which is part of the environmental justice and climate change initiatives of the Biden Administration. ² Previously the Office of Solid Waste and Emergency Response (OSWER). ³ The Office of Environmental Information (OEI) has merged with the Office of Mission Support (OMS). ⁴ This is a new line of funding for the Environmental Justice grant program. This grant support will specifically support Tribal work to eliminate disproportionately adverse human health or environmental effects on environmental justice communities in Tribal and Indigenous communities.
